Though there is still no clear end in sight to the COVID-19 situation, but it is quite different from last year. With useful vaccines for COVID-19, we can have made the decision to move forward with the congress as an offline event. The strong bond that joins us all again is the desire to constantly improve, evolve and provide the best possible care to our patients.

The ICORL 2022 program will be exciting and focus on the acquisition of knowledge and skills through best practices in education and training methods. The hallmarks of the meeting are a broad range of learning opportunities of outstanding clinical experiences and discussion on the most recent developments in research, along with unparalleled access to peers, mentors, and expertise from all parts of the world. The scientific program will include research oral presentations and posters.

We will provide the best platform for the education of otolaryngologist, trainees, medical students, and members of treatment teams from across the globe at ICORL 2022. Also, our congress that will allow members to reflect upon renew friendships, and extend our networks, and jointly explore current and future research directions. We hope that you will have a productive and fun-filled time at this very special meeting.

Even if the worldwide Pandemic makes it difficult to attend the congress for all people, we firmly believe that our passion for clinical and basic research can overcome these limitations. We look forward to meeting you at the congress both online and offline.
